

Reduce Your Rooftop Risk

RoofingSource helps thousands of restaurant owners extend the life of their roof while also protecting their business by:

- Avoiding Slips, Trips, & Falls - A leaking roof can leave you vulnerable to a possible lawsuit or Workers Compensation claim. In order to reduce your exposure, proper documentation of preventative maintenance and leak repair is key in order to prove you have necessary measures in place.
- Reducing the Chance of a Fire - When you're serving more fresh beef, you're producing more grease. More grease means a greater risk of a fire if it is not properly contained. Despite many grease containment systems being "out of sight", ensure it's not out of mind by routinely checking it.
- Eliminating Chance for Employee Injuries - Often restaurants will send untrained employees on the roof to make a "quick fix," and unintentionally put them in a dangerous situation. You're encouraged to leave roofing to the professionals.
- Preventing Expensive Damage to Rooftop Units - Your roof contains sensitive and expensive equipment like HVAC units, satellites, and more. The less foot traffic on the roof the better. Eliminate the risk of costly damages to these high cost units.
- Not Voiding Your Material Warranty - Many times building owners unknowingly void their roofing material warranty when unauthorized third parties make repairs. Almost all material warranties require documented preventative maintenance during the term of the warranty. Before any service, ensure your roofing contractor is certified with your material manufacturer (e.g. Duro-Last, Mule-Hide, GAF, Firestone, Fibertite, Carlisle etc.)

At RoofingSource, we serve as the “eyes on the roof” for our clients. All service visits provide clients with before/after photos, detailed reports, and proactive cost-effective solutions for all of your rooftop needs.
